LEADING PSYCHOTHERAPY CLINIC

We are proposing the installation of five external signs and one A-board for the office space highlighted in green. The signage will be located underneath the bay window, as well as above and below the central window. Each sign will feature raised lettering for the word THERAPY, and they will all share the same colour scheme with a back panel that matches the building's white paint, blending in seamlessly.

These photographs of the existing façade demonstrate that the proposed signage will not harm the historic character of the building. The signs are to be installed in existing empty areas where they will fit naturally. The size, style, and placement of the signs have been chosen so that no original architectural features are obscured, altered, or damaged. Installation will use non-invasive methods appropriate for historic structures, ensuring that all existing materials remain intact. The design and colour palette of the signs are intentionally selected to complement the period appearance of The Lyndum House, maintaining visual harmony with the historic façade. Additionally, the neighbouring office space provides a clear precedent, illustrating our intention to preserve the building's integrity while accommodating for the necessary identification of the signage.

We have numbered the individual signs accordingly to differentiate them as they are showcased in further detail on the following slides.
